

Sowing ideas Serving innovative agriculture

Who we are

From 1995, we have been operating to sustain the development of agriculture which, by modernizing instruments, renews the vitality of the natural environment and so giving a new prominence to the social function of farmers.

In "Terre dell'Adriatico" entrepreneurs and agricultural technicians collaborate with experts in computer science, documentation, management and business administration, economy and marketing.

Our aims

- To facilitate the circulation of the agricultural products of eco-compatible qualities (organic and bio-dynamic etc) by promoting the awareness of the different needs and expectations of producers, consumers and sellers;
- To aid the promotion of the relationships with the administration activity and public laws (European, national and local), in order to increase the whole efficiency of the economic activity of the producers;
- To develop research and projects to solve agronomic, managerial and marketing problems, for a production which respects the environment;
- To provide complete, clear information and documentation to agricultural technicians, managers, sellers and consumers according to their individual needs.
